

PROJECT-BASED ENGAGEMENTS AT CONSERVATION CAPITAL

Beyond any permanent position offered by Conservation Capital, we are always looking to create relationships with individuals who are interested in project-based engagements. Such individuals will likely fall into one of two categories:

- General: Those who offer skillsets relevant to the generality of our three core areas of our work: Innovative Conservation Finance; Conservation Area Business Planning; and Engaging Mainstream Corporations.
- Specific: Those who offer specialist skillsets that might be relevant to specific components of these three core areas. These might be sectoral (tourism, agriculture, forestry, livestock, fisheries, aquaculture, carbon etc.) or disciplinary (capital markets, asset management, financial modelling, natural capital valuation, conservation management, fundraising, legal, communications etc).

While much of our work tends to focus on a Europe-Africa axis, we are increasingly working in Asia, Oceania and South America so are largely agnostic in terms of geographic location.

What we do require are individuals who are passionate about the natural world, intellectually able and curious, creative thinkers, strong communicators, are fun to work with, and have an efficient, execution-driven work ethic.

If Conservation Capital's particular approach to conservation development resonates with you and this type of flexible working relationship is of interest, please do get in touch for an initial chat.
